ADF Pilot Overview

Candidates applying to become aircrew for all three branches of the ADF must achieve a pass in the Aircrew Aptitude Test (AAT) or sometimes called the Pilot Specific Test

This test is commonly sat by candidates applying to become

- Pilots in the three services (RAAF pilot, Army pilot and Navy pilot)
- RAAF Air Combat Officers
- RAN Observers (Naval Flight Officers)
- Australian Army Loadmasters
- Air Traffic Controllers
- Fighter Controllers

Before an applicant can attend the Pilot Specific Test, the required score must first be achieved in the YOU Session test. In PATS you can do a combined course for the YOU session test and the Pilot Specific Test.

ADF aircrew selection process

Key factors

- Test scores are graded as a band one, two, or three pass - and will constitute a significant component of overall score. Candidates achieving higher test passes will proceed to flight screening more quickly.
- The Pilot Specific Test can only be attempted three times - with a higher pass score being required in subsequent sittings.
- There is also a twelve month suspension period following a testing failure.

After you have passed both selection tests, you will be invited to attend an Officer Selection Board.

How are ADF Pilots selected in the Officer Selection Board?

- Team experience
- Leadership role experience - e.g. school captain
- Strong academic result
- Aptitude test scores
- Motivation (Aviation & Military)
- Self- funded training - e.g. flying/ gliding

PATS can fully prepare you for the YOU Session test and the Pilot Specific Test. Our clients have achieved a 100% passing rate in 2011.
